

VOCABULARY CARDS: Town Hall

accomplish

feasible

attend

report

area

serve

race

juggling

preference alternatives

If something is feasible, it can be done.

When you accomplish a task, you have completed it with good results.

When you make a report, you tell what you have learned or found out.

If you attend an event, you go to it.

When you serve people, you bring them food and drinks.

An area is an open space or a part of a place.

If you say you are juggling many things, you are working on many projects at the same time.

If someone wants to be the president or a mayor, he or she runs a political race.

If you have several choices, then you have alternatives.

If you like one thing better than another, you have a preference.