If you are fleeing from something, you are running away from it.

The things that you own are your belongings.

If you correspond with someone, you write a letter or an email to that person.

When you crave something, you want it very much.

If you smother something, you cover it completely so that it has no air.

If you do something gently, you do it in a way that is careful and kind.

If you plead, you beg someone for something.

When you answered someone's question, you replied.

If you grunted, you made a small, deep sound in your throat.

Something that is fragrant has a pleasing, sweet smell.
